This week The New York State Sportswriters and Coaches Organization for Girls Sports announced its annual list of All-State Softball selections for the 2022 season. Unlike previous seasons, the number of the local contingent making the list was relatively low this season, but a half-dozen stars were honored with the nod, all of which came from Class C.

Making the Third Team in Class C was Caledonia-Mumford junior shortstop Maddy DeVore. The Raiders had a decent season and finished at 13-6 but fell in the quarterfinals of the Class C3 tournament, though the future is bright with one more year of DeVore. She batted .615 this spring with 48 total hits, including 10 doubles, five triples and six home runs, while she drove in a whopping 38 runs and also scored an incredible 50 times in just 19 games. DeVore was also a perfect 12-of-12 on stolen base attempts.
